Bellevue WorkSource Center to Move to Redmond

BELLEVUE – Looking for work in East King County just got easier. The WorkSource office in Bellevue moves in late June to 7735 178th Place N.E., in Redmond.

"Our new location will make it more convenient for job seekers and employers to access WorkSource's career services," said Administrator Paul Christopherson. "The attractive one-story building is more centrally located in a part of East King County where business growth is occurring."

Christopherson said residents and employers in rural neighborhoods will be able to access WorkSource's new location more easily. There's more parking and a Park and Ride is located across the street.

"We're also looking forward to a stronger connection with Lake Washington Technical College, which is expanding its campus into the Redmond area," Christopherson said.

WorkSource will open in its new Redmond location on June 30. During the transition, services will be offered at the current site at 13133 Bel-Red Road, Bellevue. Customers can also receive services at other WorkSource locations, including WorkSource Renton, WorkSource North Seattle, and the Bellevue Community College WorkSource Affiliate.

As with other WorkSource centers, the new location will offer a variety of career services at no charge. Job hunters can use computers, phones, copiers and fax machines; get work referrals and resume help; attend career workshops and connect with employers at hiring events. They can search job listings and post their resumes online at go2worksource.com.

Employers can take advantage of computerized job matching, labor market information, assistance with recruitment and layoffs, information about training opportunities for their employees and tax credits to save their business money.

As part of the move, WorkSource will get new phone and fax numbers in mid June. A name change is also forthcoming.
